DEMAND GROWS

The spontaneous demand that Senator Borah of Idaho be the nominee of the Republican party for president has not abated but grown in volume.

It is said by those close to him that he is indifferent whether he receives the honor, or if it falls to the lot of a man with the same progressive ideas of government as his own.

That statement, in my opinion, must be accepted with many reservations. The fact is that no man in political life, regardless of the purity and loftiness of his ideas and ideals would be indifferent to the prospect of occupying the presidential chair.

ELEMENT OF STRENGTH

An appreciable element of strength and one which would appeal to large numbers of people in both parties is Borah's attitude on the Constitution, of which he has always been a staunch and valiant defender.

A few nights ago in his home state of Idaho he talked to a group of farmers and his utterances were frequently interrupted by applause. He told his auditors some plain truths, which are well worth passing along.

ONLY PROTECTION

He warned his audience to fight for its sovereignty in matters pertaining to the Constitution as that document, he declared "is the only protection you have on God's earth."

After noting that war involving European nations appears only too

Speed Record Is Established By Local Officers

Richmond police gave a concrete example yesterday morning of being ahead of the times, or something.

Radio Patrolman Carl Povennire of the local finest, was patrolling his beat out in the wilds of East Richmond shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning when he espied two young girls.

Questioned by the officer, the girls said their names were Carlean Murphy, 14, 1019 12 Kirkland street, Oakland and Ruth Finn, 14, of 1229 Nineteenth street, Oakland.

After Povennire had broken down their sales resistance they finally admitted that they had intentions of getting themselves hence, to say nothing of shaking the dust of the easibay off their itching feet. Povennire took them to the police station.

The officer was leading the young ladies into the police station just as the police radio receiving set started a broadcast from the Berkeley police station, describing the two girls and declaring that they had run away.

Police immediately called the Berkeley radio station, which informed the world that Richmond police had found the girls before they had been reported missing.

An hour later the mother of one of the girls appeared at police station and claimed the two would-be runaways.

She also alleges that Cheney struck her and called her names.

Custody of two minor children, and $60 monthly alimony are asked by the plaintiff.

GOP WOMEN PREPARING FOR RALLY

When Judge Edward Butler of Marin county ordered the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate yesterday, directed to County Auditor A. N. Sullenger, a five sided victory was scored:

First, by A. H. Campbell, whose claim for $342.10 for services as a grand juror, and attendance upon grand jury meetings and committee work was ordered paid;

Second, by the other members of the William E. Lewis grand jury whose claims also for committee service were refused payment by the auditor under a ruling of the district attorney's office;

Third, by Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston, who had authorized the payment of the claims and the legality of whose action was thus upheld.

Fourth, by Attorneys T. M. Carlson and Robert Collins who presented the case in a very convincing and concise manner, backing up their contentions with numerous court decisions.

Fifth—The decision means that grand juries, as has always been their custom in the past, in this county, will transact the work of their body in a large measure through the medium of committees without being hampered or harassed. The present grand jury it is said has been marking time until the Campbell case was decided.

BOY VINDICATED

Incidentally it is also a victory for former District Attorney James F. Hoey, who during his tenure

Church Board Studies Plans For New Edifice

Plans for the building of a new First Presbyterian church in Richmond were discussed last evening when the trustees of the church held a short meeting.

Two plans are being studied by the board, for presentation to the congregation for its approval or disapproval. Under one plan the church at Twelfth and Bissell will be sold and razed. A new church would be built there. Under the second plan, the old church would be sold and a new site would be purchased somewhere east of Twenty-third street.

Another meeting will be held by the board of trustees in the very near future to give further consideration to the propositions. The church plans to spend about $40,000 for a new building.

MUSSOLINI PREPARED TO PUSH ACTION

GENEVA, Sept. 27. (UP)—League delegates heard tonight that Premier Benito Mussolini had announced:

"It may cost me a crown, maybe a hundred thousand Italian lives, perhaps my head but it will be worth it with my plans regarding Ethiopia on the date we decided upon months ago."

French quarters revealed the almost incredible version of recent conversation at Rome between the Dictator and French Ambassador Count Charles de Chaberny, who made an extremely discouraging report to Premier Pierre Laval.

CONTINUES ACTION
The League of Nations proceeded with three-fold action in anticipation of war between Italy and Ethiopia.

Delegates, with little or no hope of swaying Italy from the road to war, concentrated on preparations for decisive action in the grave crisis to world peace since 1914.

WILL RECESS
The League moved along these lines:

1. The Assembly steering committee, against Italy's opposition, decided that when the Assembly recesses its work Saturday it will complete, instead of closing completely. This will keep the body of small nations, who oppose Italian militarism, ready to reconvene on 24 hours' notice.

2. The committee of 13 accepted in principle Emperor Haile Selassie's appeal.

While the reports of yesterday carried the chest beyond the halfway mark toward the budget, it left $10,000 yet to be gathered, and leaders sounded a note of warning that great efforts will have to be put forth in the next few days if this year's campaign is to be successful.

REPORTS MADE
The reports of work accomplished since Wednesday's luncheon in

CRISIS AT HAND
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27. (UP)—Peace of the Pacific Coast waterfront tested on the edge of disaster tonight, awaiting union reaction to a crushing defeat of arguments that union longshoremen should not be required to handle "hot cargo" under the 1934 longshoremen board award.

The crisis, threatening a return to chaotic conditions of last summer's coast wide maritime strike, developed from a decision of Federal Arbitrator M. C. Sloss. In effect, the ruling upheld ship owners' contention and held union longshoremen directly responsible for an incessant series of short-lived dock strikes at charged by employers.

Big Verdict Returned In Damage Suit

A verdict of $3,000, one of the largest ever returned by a jury in this county, was the amount of damages awarded the plaintiff last evening in the Superior Court in the personal injury suit of Gertrude F. Augustine, 25, of Martinez, through her guardian, Mary Augustine, against the A. R. Seegar Company and James Reed, A. poll of the jury showed that it reached its agreement by a vote of 10 to 2.

The action has been on trial for the past three days and has attracted considerable attention. It is claimed Miss Augustine became mentally incompetent as the result of injuries she suffered in an automobile-truck collision on Alhambra avenue, Martinez, April 10 to 2.

PASTOR IN CRASH
Rev. C. T. Harwell, pastor of Central Methodist Church escaped injuries yesterday when his car was involved in a collision at the intersection of Sixth street and Bissell avenue with a light truck driven by C. S. Bartram, 33, of Richmond.

Funeral services are pending at Wilson & Kratzer chapel for the late Mrs. Nancy E. Tackett, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dolly Locke, 640 Fourth street yesterday.

Deceased was 82 years of age and was a native of Missouri. She had resided with her daughter for the past four years.

In addition to Mrs. Locke, Mrs. Tackett leaves the following children: Eunice, George Ben and Rector Tackett, all of Kansas; a sister, Mrs. M. Wilson of Texas and eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mother Insists Death Of Son Murder Crime

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—UP—A mother, forced to batter down a locked bathroom door and cut down the body of her 17-year-old son, found hanging inside, tonight demanded police investigation, insisting he was murdered.

The boy, John Dunn, III, Beverly Hills high school student is the son of John Henry Dunn, Jr., 77.

The mother, Mrs. Birch Alsop, called on District Attorney Bureau Fitts and offered a story which she said convinced her young Dunn did not hang himself.

Details of the mother's story were not revealed.

She said the boy did not appear at the dinner table and she became alarmed. Finding the bathroom door locked, she hammered it open. Her son was hanging from a light fixture.

MR. AND MRS. ROY DESOTO and baby daughter, Gayle, have returned to their home from the Richmond Cottage hospital, where the baby was born last Saturday morning.

Longshoremen To Resist Ruling By U.S. Arbitrator On "Hot Cargo" Issue

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27. (UP)—The I.L.A. through S. M. Karel, Pacific Coast Labor Bureau official, tonight indicated it will resist Federal Arbitrator M. C. Sloss' ruling on the "hot cargo" issue.

Karel said he had been empowered by William J. Lewis, I.L.A. district president to ask a re-hearing on the "hot cargo" issue, settled today with a crushing defeat for union contentions.

"I doubt whether the ruling is now enforceable until such time as the rehearing request is decided," Karel said.

TAMALPAIS BEATEN BY GRID SQUAD

The Richmond Union high school football team added its third victory to its string yesterday by taking the Mount Tamalpais team down the line by a score of 32 to 0 before a crowd of 1,000 at the high school turf.

The victory marked the first home game of the season for the Red and Blue gridlers who showed an unbeatable form.

FIVE TOUCHDOWNS
The local team scored one touchdown in the first quarter; two in the third and two in the fourth. Singular as it may seem the first play and the last play of the game resulted in a touchdown for Richmond.

The first touchdown for the Richmond squad came in the first minute of play. Wilson kicked off for Richmond to the Tamalpais 36-yard line. On the first play Captain Bill Adams of the visitors attempted a long pass but Glenn Whalen, playing fullback for the Oilers snagged the ball and was away to the races, rambling 30 yards for the first score. The try for conversion was wide.

From then on until the end of the first half, the two teams put up a struggle, mostly in Tamalpais territory, with the Oilers knocking at the door. Time after time the Richmond squad carried the ball down the field to within

Green Porch Girls Freed Of Charge

Judge L. F. Grover, who last Tuesday took under advisement the cases of three women, arrested in a raid on the Green Porch by the Sheriff's office and charged with vagrancy, rendered his decision yesterday.

The defendants, Lorraine Wilson Kay Felton and Marie Bennett were found not guilty on the grounds of insufficient evidence and that no proof had been adduced to substantiate the charges.

The Green Porch is now under lock and key, having been closed through abatement proceedings.

CHICAGO CUBS CINCH FLAG IN TWO VICTORIES

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Chicago's club tonight held the cinch pennant as a result of their 6 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of a doubleheader here today. The Cubs also won the second game, 5 to 3 for their 21st consecutive victory.

Approximately 10,000 fans braved the sudden cold weather to watch Chicago win the one-game necessary to clinch the flag that is symbolic of championship.

DEAN WALLOPED

Joe Dean, (Dizzy) Dean, the Cubs' star pitcher was pitted against Big Bill Lee in the crucial game, but the Cubs hammered Dean all around the park for 15 hits.

The only chance that the Cubs had after Wednesday's 5 to 0 defeat was to take remaining four games of the series, to tie the pennant race. That would have necessitated a three-game post season playoff series.

CUBS IN ATTACK

After the Cubs won the first game today, the remaining games of the season, which closes Sunday, will be beneficial only from an excitement point.

Prod Lindstrom, Cubs' centerfielder, led Chicago's batting attack, getting three singles and a double in four trips to the plate, joining in three of his team's runs. Left Fielder Austin Gahan and third baseman Stanley Hack each hit safely three times. Hack scored one run in the fourth after doubling, and then homered in the eighth.

CARDS DRAW BLOOD

The Cardinals took a two-run lead in the first, but the rallies were unceremonious. Then in the third a double by Gahan, singles by Herman and Lindstrom and Mack's error enabled the Cubs to tie the score.

In the following inning Hack and Pitcher Lee collaborated to put over the winning run when the third baseman doubled and scored when Lee's single bounced off of two bases and rolled into center field.

From then on the Cubs were over for the Cardinals. A double by Herman home with a double in the seventh, Hack homered in the eighth and Lindstrom's ninth-inning single scored Gahan to complete the Cubs' total.

THREE ERRORS

Only one of three Cardinal errors figured in the clinching of the flag. When Bill Deneke threw out Gahan to return the Cubs to the top of the ninth, the error was made when Deneke's throw was caught by Gahan and rolled into center field.

Phil Capavone, Hack and Gahan, hit out to the pitcher, mound and dropped the victory. Lee on 1, which as they walked a lead on the out.

Manager Charles Grimm ran out of the crowd and ran over four-foot concrete wall into the box occupied by his wife and daughter. William (Duke) Grimm, brother-in-law, who was with him, was also injured. Neither was hurt.

WASOT BALL

Tex Carleton, former Cardinal pitcher with the Cubs, the only one of the ball that Lee used in warming up before the game started.

"That ball," said Carleton, "is the official warming ball for the World Series. It's our mascot."

Then a announcer Jim Kelly, in a stentorian voice advised that "tickets for tomorrow's game will be on sale at the ticket office." The fans responded with a loud, long and emphatic "hooray."

The Cubs came from behind in the eighth to win their 21st straight victory, five to three. The Cardinals archrival, a three-run lead in the sixth when two hits, an error and two walks resulted in three runs.

King Football To Resume Throne As Season Opens

By UNITED PRESS

Pacific Coast football season marked time last night preparing to swarm into stadiums from Los Angeles to Seattle today to watch major season-opening college football games.

Head coaches, anxiously looking back over the ill-fated two weeks of trial practice time, were expected to have a few words of advice to their players. Several of the more enthusiastic fans rang cow bells, others cheered.

The game will be played Sunday afternoon in Eugene, Ore.

Cards Facing Shakeup After Losing Pennant

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals face a drastic shakeup tonight. They failed to regain their National League pennant, Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager, told newsmen here tonight. The publication of the Cardinals' failure in internal discussion emphasized that the team is determined there will be no repetition next year.

Although most of the trouble centered around the team's offense, Rickey and Branch Rickey said that neither would be sold or traded. Joe Medwick, outfielder who had a fistfight with Dizzy in Pittsburgh is expected to go. Frankie Frisch will continue as manager.

Kimball Must Mount Gallows For Slayings

ALBURN, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Earl Kimball, 21-year-old confessed slayer of James G. Kennett was sentenced today to hang for the murder of a first degree offense, a jury decided tonight on its first ballot. The verdict was reached in less than half an hour.

The decision made the death penalty mandatory. Sentence will be pronounced at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

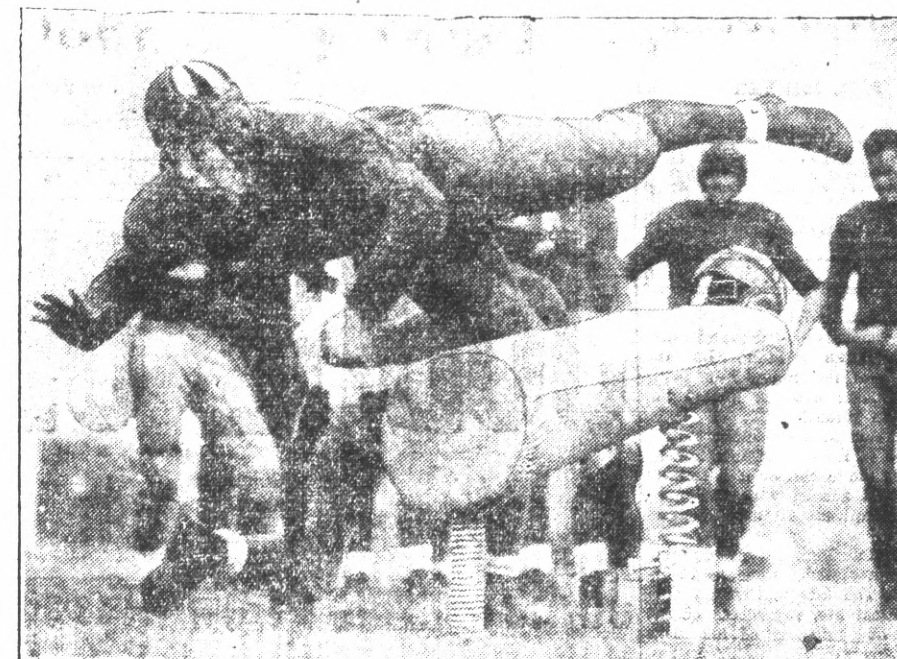

The verdict was the climax to a fantastic story of "murder for hire" attributed to the ex-soldier who once "confessed" to 21 murders in exchange for bounties and cigarettes offered him by questioners.

Kimball, known as the "preacher of Florida Flats" had confessed to murdering Kennett, a former Civil War contractor, in earlier statements to the sheriff and district attorney.

He told of shooting, stabbing and beating him to death and then throwing his body down a deserted mine shaft.

RULING BY JURIST ENDS PAY DISPUTE

of that office had the same question handed to him for an opinion. He decided that the grand jurors were entitled to compensation for committee labors.

JUDGE QUESTIONS ATTORNEY The contention made in behalf of the auditor by Harold Jacoby of the district attorney's office that there is no statutory provision for pay for committee work, was held by Judge Butler to be untenable. While Mr. Jacoby was making his argument the jurist interrupted him several times to definitely determine whether his argument led to the conclusion that the grand jury could not function through committees, but only as an entire body. Jacoby admitted that such was his view of the law and the judge took issue with him on the point, thus indicating what his decision would be.

INTERESTED SPECTATORS

The hearing did not get under way until about 2:30 o'clock in the courtroom of Judge Bray, being held up by the trial of a personal injury suit. The courtroom was well filled with spectators among them being a number of members of the Lewis grand jury, including the foreman William E. Lewis of Crockett, and Judge Thomas D. Johnston the legality of whose order upon the auditor for the payment of the jurors' fees, was brought into question through the action of the auditor. As both Judge Johnston and Judge Bray were disqualified it was necessary for an outside judge to hear and decide the issue.

PRELIMINARY SPARRING

There was some preliminary legal sparring before argument began. Robert Collins of the firm of Carlson and Collins had endeavor to have the district attorney's office stipulate to a set of agreed facts, but Deputy Jacoby refused to do so, although District Attorney Healy announced his willingness. However the controversy, if such it could be called, was quickly out of the way and Attorney Collins began his argument, which was very ably and logically presented. Mr. Carlson, who had just emerged from a trial of a $61,200 damages trial, was content to look on and leave the matter in the hands of his able junior partner.

COLLINS' ARGUMENT

Collins argued that when Judge Johnston approved the claims of the grand jurors, his action was final and conclusive upon the auditor, whose duty was then limited to the ministerial act of writing and sending the warrants. In other words the law made the judge the auditor in such cases. Numerous cases were cited and sections of the Political and Penal Codes were read to show that they were broad enough in their scope and intent to extend to committee meetings of grand jurors. "Unquestionably," he continued, "the powers granted grand jurors, impliedly at least, granted the authority for them to transact their business and carry out their duties as expeditiously and as economically as possible. This result can only come through the use of committees to attain such objectives."

SAYS CLAIMS ILLEGAL

Deputy District Attorney Harold Jacoby said that the auditor cannot be compelled to pay illegal claims, and unless there is an express statutory provision providing for payment of jurors for committee work there is no way they can be compensated for such work or mileage. "Suppose," said Judge Butler, "a committee of the grand jury met under proper authorization of its foreman, looked into the matters assigned to it and then reported back to the grand jury as a whole—do you claim that such action would be not entitled to pay?" Receiving an affirmative reply from Jacoby, Judge Butler said it stood to reason that if work could be better and more efficiently be performed by five than 19, then good business judgment and economy should dictate such a course. He ridiculed the idea that the grand jury could not function except through its entire personnel, and pointed out that the body could sit around, smoke and waste its time, and if so disposed could insist on receiving pay.

Historically he pointed out, committees have ever been the way of handling the business of large unwieldy bodies, such as congress and the legislature, and when these committees reported to the main body the work done became the work of the entire membership.

The visiting jurist's dissertation was both learned and interesting and held the close attention of those in the courtroom. After he had finished, he inquired

Many Headache Cures Stem From the Coal Tar Products

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.
 You need only recall the endless characteristics of headache to understand why there are so many remedies. A headache may be merely disagreeable or agonizing. It is local, of general, continuous and uniform, or spasmodic and irregular. It is bursting, stabbing, blinding, or merely nagging and exhausting, until our adjectives are exhausted.

It is undoubtedly an affection of some nerve center, possibly several, but to explain it, as some authorities do, as a "nerve storm" running amuck among the brain centers only leaves us the task of explaining what a nerve storm might be.

Our big interest is, of course, in learning how to get rid of the distress and the quick-acting remedies need to be specific and directed toward the cause of the headache. The trouble lies in the fact that headaches are usually only mildly disabling and considered of not enough importance to be taken to a physician.

Gets the Habit
 It is usually a more or less chronic form of headache that gets on the office date book. By that time, the patient has a very irrational habit of asking for a remedy that will relieve his distress, while he has little idea of discontinuing the practice that causes the pain or of instituting a program of correction that might eventually cure the trouble.

Here we may mention a number of the most common headache remedies and make a small effort to tell you what you may expect of them. Practically all, or at least the bulk of headache remedies, are a coal-tar product and like the rest of its kind, it is a heart depressant. It deadens the sensitivity of the nerves to pain and thus controls the transfer of distress signals in the form of pain.

It does not, of course, cure the cause of the headache, but relieves the misery until nature has found a way to relieve the distress. The remedies called "antifebrile" are forms of acetanilid which is anti-pyretic in its action.

The over-popular aspirin is one of the salicylates valuable for its sedative effect in any sort of headache due to colds or to sinus obstruction or infection. The sorry part about aspirin is its tendency to become habit-forming.

They Keep Going
 This is particularly true among young employed girls who try to keep up a rather strenuous social life in addition to a daytime job. The dancing is great fun for a time, but eventually the paper will have to be paid.

One of the best friends to be had by the sufferer from chronic headache is just old-fashioned camphor, fragrant, pure, and soothing. Camphor is a nerve sedative and at the same time a heart stimulant. Long, deep inhalations of the spirit of camphor as well as local applications to the seat of pain are refreshing and bring relief.

The use of caffeine is sometimes indicated to restore the depression of the heart action caused by acetanilid. Sometimes, when a patient has been forbidden coffee, we find him taking small doses of caffeine because "it's good for the headache." Might as well stay with the coffee.

Where the headache is of the migraine type, the most dependable remedies contain valium, which relieves tension, relaxes the nerve centers, and restores the general rhythm.

Remedies containing bella donna are of this same character, but some systems cannot tolerate it. The many forms of bromides that are helpful in cases of headache would make a column of themselves.

Modes and Manners
QUESTION: "We are giving a dinner to celebrate the silver wedding anniversary of our parents. As we are two sisters, it has been suggested that the husband of the elder sister should make a toast. Would this be correct?"
ANSWER: On such an occasion it is more in keeping with family tradition for the eldest daughter to make a toast, when there are no sons in the family.

QUESTION: "What is the correct costume for a sorority tea?"
ANSWER: Either tailored dressy afternoon or street clothes with matching hat may be worn. The important thing is to be well turned-out, with nails manicured, hair groomed, gloves and lingerie spotless.

Revivify Hair With Hot Oil Shampoo Aid

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THE success of any coiffure, no matter how simple or elaborate, depends on the condition of your hair. Right now your hair is apt to be in need of a stiff beauty routine to make it soft and manageable again—after a summer of exposure to sun and wind.

Begin with a shampoo preceded by a treatment of special conditioning oil or hot oil. The hot oil will remove all dead cuticle or dandruff from the scalp, the shampoo may be given quickly and effectively. The appearance of the hair is immediately improved. Dry split ends become soft and pliant again, the texture of the hair is improved, and a natural luster accents the color and highlights.

Your shampoo is most important. Never rub a cake of soap directly on your hair. Either buy a good shampoo preparation—or make your own by shaving a cake of bland toilet soap or castile soap into a pint of cold water, set in a container of hot water, and let stand until the soap is dissolved.

When you are ready to wash your hair, put some of this thick soap jelly into a cup of hot water and dissolve. Before washing, your hair, brush thoroughly to remove any bits of loosened cuticle or particles of lint and dust. Apply the hot oil by applying along parts at intervals of about an inch all over your head and massage with the fingertips. Remaining oil is changed down the scalp and taken out on a towel of the oil and as possible. Now work up a stiff lather with about one-third of a cup of liquid soap or shampoo.

Use both hands to work this into your scalp and through your hair until your head is piled high with foamy lather. Rinse and repeat the soaping a second—and if your hair is very soiled—a third time.

Now rinse your hair again and wash in fresh water, using cooler water each time to tone the scalp. When the last water is clear you might pour a special rinse over your hair to bring out the high lights. Then dry your hair by hand and in the sunshine whenever possible. If your hair has a good natural wave, let it curl around them by crumpling your hands and do not comb out until nearly dry.

In regions where water is very hard and it is difficult to rinse the hair thoroughly, you will find a soapless pine shampoo especially satisfactory. This preparation leaves the hair truly clean, lustrous and manageable.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Following a recent illness, I lost most of my hair. It is coming in again. The new growth is about three inches long and quite straight. I would like to have a permanent soon, but my friends say it will stop the new hair from coming in. Is this so? I really need to do something about it, since the new hair is unmanageable unless I keep it curled with an iron." —Florrie

Having a permanent would be less injurious to your hair than frequent curlings with an iron. I would suggest that you wait three or four weeks, however, and in the meantime set your hair into as good a condition as possible with stimulating tonic, regular brushing and two or three hot oil treatments. Have your new wave and continue this special care until your hair is soft and manageable. In the meantime you can keep your hair curled with the little tin or aluminum curlers that look something like the old-fashioned iron.

QUESTION: "I have slender well-shaped hands with long fingers that seem to call for long fingernails with rounded points. I cannot keep them this way, however, since my nails are inclined to be brittle and I do a great deal of typing. They are always split and broken. Is it possible to prevent this?" —A. R.

Soaking the nails in warm olive oil occasionally and the regular use of cuticle oil will make the nails more flexible. You would be able to file the tips in rounded points and wear them shorter, however. Another suggestion is to buy a set of rubber caps to fit over your typewriter keys and use these in nearly any store.

The Veil Is Back

There's a good possibility that hats, such as this one worn by Rosalind Russell, of the screen, may return to popularity. The hat combines velvet with velour and adds new importance to the nose veil.

Lines of Head Material Part Of Silhouette Dish as Days Grow Cooler

By IRENE VAIL
 New York—It has been sensibly agreed that the head is a part of the general silhouette. Schiaparelli is quoted as saying: "The head has its own silhouette of collection change, and it is the most revolutionary of collection changes." And Lelong: "Sometimes I have to look for the starting point of a gown's construction in the head and neck as well as those of the face can be integral parts of the construction." For the first time, Lelong has designed head-dresses, mostly for evening. For the first time, also, Louisboulanger shows little caps with some of her afternoon clothes.

The Molyneux coiffures, reported as shown on mannequins at the recent shows, are making a big sensation. They are modern versions of the Edwardian era, mounted on little bases composed of velvet, lace, or flowers, and are composed of tall sprays of tulle or aigret, the whole held by a bandeau around the hair, so the headpiece is directly front.

Other evening ideas are actual caps trimmed with feathery fronds, or hats with cocktail frocks such as a little helmet of blue kangaroo feathers mingled with a few flame feathers, worn with a cockatoo of changeable velvet. Flower garlands are seen here and there, even a brimmed hat or a mere brim held on by a strap. And lastly, there are the hoods and bandanas, occasionally completely detached as one model in white from Schiaparelli, or the bridesmaid's model at Bruyere, more often attached to the evening wrap.

There is one hood which must be mentioned. It has been called Lawrence of Arabia, because a twist of fabric or a band of fur surmounts the hood like the crown-chiefs of top of their heads, but in reality, inspiration for these must have come from Italian paintings, one, so has Schiaparelli.

Not only are party frocks in jewel colorings, but they are some-thing jeweled, trimmed as well. Interesting neckline arrangements result from the use of ropes of beads, pearls, or the so-called "beaded" stones are used. Sounds elaborate, doesn't it? As a matter of fact, it is, but so goes the mode of the moment. Opulent and affluent looking clothes are worn, and while it's a bit early to wear these wintry-looking models, there's no guesswork about them being used when the season gets under way.

"Why Do Women Go Into Business?" the Men Would Like to Know

By MARIAN MAY'S MARTIN

THE conversation had turned to reasons for women working. One of the men present had made the statement that men worked for two reasons only: because they had to get money to support themselves and possibly some one else, or because they were crazy about their work. He said that women worked for all manner of reasons, and because some of them were trivial they cluttered up industrial life, making it much more difficult for men to get work. "Why, for instance, does Ida work?" he asked, and Ida allowed she worked because she liked to eat, not the real reason at all in Ida's particular case, since she had a husband who provided her with more calories than she cared to consume. It is true that at one time she had worked to provide the necessities of life, but just as true that her job had become a sort of habit with her. Her pay envelope was just as necessary, for she was continually quarreling with her husband, and too many more of her time and energy to her job than it merited, and came home at times done to a frazzle when, according to him, it was quite unnecessary.

You and Your Child

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

HEARING the screaming of brakes, Mrs. Reed and her hostess rushed to the window, expecting to see an accident. What they saw, however, was a near accident. But their morbid curiosity had been so real, that they remained at the window looking out while the subject of conversation turned to accidents. They saw a woman behind a baby carriage make a dash across the street. Like the street, like the danger as together they dodged on-rushing taxis and trucks. Finally both crossed safely, arriving on the other side of the street just as the traffic light changed. The mother's hurry could not have been so great that a minute's wait to insure a safe crossing would turn for his money. Men don't do that. They finish what they are expected to do and what they are paid for, and call it a day. Women try to do too much—and too many things at a time. They scatter their shots and go haywire from lack of concentration.

That's true, thought I, in my corner. They do try to do too many things at once and therefore lack concentration. But it's just because they do more than is expected of them—enter for less money—that women find it easier than men to get employment. And that's something.

"Women work because they think they want to be independent," said another. "It's all very well to do a job, but it's silly to work overtime and use up all one's nervous force and energy when the boss does not expect any such return for his money. Men don't do that. They finish what they are expected to do and what they are paid for, and call it a day. Women try to do too much—and too many things at a time. They scatter their shots and go haywire from lack of concentration."

That's true, thought I, in my corner. They do try to do too many things at once and therefore lack concentration. But it's just because they do more than is expected of them—enter for less money—that women find it easier than men to get employment. And that's something.

Possibly not, we all agreed. But, thought I, that isn't much of an incentive to a career, or doesn't make for a situation which calls for any great co-operation on the part of friends in order to help a job which did nothing more than allow a woman license to make a fool of herself, which this particular exponent of the live-my-own-life-league was doing.

Many Better Reasons

Many women, with husbands or other visible means of support, have far more worthy reasons for working. They may be sending a younger member of the family through college, or supporting a lame duck, or working in order that some desired end may be the more quickly achieved.

It isn't so very often that a woman works for the joy of working—but when she does one may hunt on her doing something not only worth while, but being rather handsomely rewarded for it.

There are women who work because they prefer filling to kitchen sinks, who, in short, detest housework and are willing to do almost anything to avoid giving a hand with the dishes.

So long as a woman has to work, certainly seems as though it was a privilege to say what kind of work she will do. It's stupid, according to my ideas at least, to force her into the kitchen when he might be so much more useful in another capacity.

One assumes that every girl in business has some good reason for being there. I doubt whether it is really anyone's affair but her own that that reason is.

For a good many years the world has taken it for granted that men must work in order to live. It is actually getting accustomed to the idea that women are in the same position, yet not sufficiently used to the idea to accept it without showing considerable curiosity.

possible, he recalled recent statements by spokesmen for Great Britain to the effect that the United States "must defend the peace of the world."

"But likely lack of the peace of the world," he said, "is a thing that concerns Great Britain a great deal more, and that is the story she has down there around Ethiopia."

"War in Europe, if it comes, will be war purely for territory. It is not war for freedom and for human rights! It will be war for territory! And I am not in favor of sacrificing the life of a single American boy for the life of a single territory in Europe."

"I venture to say that if the people of Italy had the kind of situation that you have, with the power to express themselves, the right of free speech and the right to discuss whether or not they should go into war, there would be no war in Europe."

"When you give the right to change the Constitution of the United States to Congress, or to the action of an Executive, you have surrendered the right and power which the people of Italy have surrendered."

cluded $1900 from the "A" division, $3446 from the industrial division and $496.18, with a partial report made by the women's division on the promise of more complete figures next Tuesday.

The report showed a large contribution from the employees of the Standard Oil company as well as a satisfactory contribution from the company, with the promise that a final larger sum will be shown in the final total next week. Charles A. Hollenbeck, chairman of the drive on, has been out of town, will devote himself to the task in the next few days and hopes to make a report that will show contributions from the employees of all plants at the concluding luncheon meeting, Francis Smith, local manager of the Standard Oil company, reported for the company, and the employees.

HONOR MARKERS

It was reported by Emmet Hitchcock, head of the business district work in lower Macdonald avenue, that blocks on both sides of Macdonald between Eighth and Ninth have reached the inner per cent mark with honor emblems, and that the merchants will be entitled to special mention in advertising space to be provided by the Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday and Wednesday. This was a friendly contest between workers in the business district divisions, and C. K. Warner, campaign executive, announced that both blocks were reported simultaneously and that therefore both are winners.

Speakers at the luncheon were W. P. Drummy, campaign chairman, Joseph H. Miller, chairman of the "A" division, and Dr. Katharine Bailey, speaker of the day.

The luncheon was conducted with that of the Rotary Club, Geo. Thornton presiding. It was served by the women of the Episcopal church. The final luncheon will be in connection with the Lions Club, and the 29-30 Club, with luncheon served by women of the First Christian church. Warner warned that all efforts must be put forward in the next few days if the Chest campaign is to be successful. He said from now on all workers may solicit subscriptions wherever they can find them, regardless of whether the prospect is in the territory originally assigned to the worker.

BUICK MODELS FOR 1936 ARE ON DISPLAY

Among the first 1936 motor cars to appear this Fall, the new Buick has been given nationwide public announcement and is on display in the showrooms of Washburn Brothers, local Buick dealer.

PRICES LOWER

Prices are lower than last year on all models, and the new cars are entirely different from anything ever offered by Buick with the exception of those major construction features that have identified Buick for many years.

Buick's four lines of 1936 models comprise fourteen body types and all are powered by straight eight engines of valve-in-head design. Ranging upward in wheelbase, weight and price class, the four groups are designated as the Buick Special, the Buick Century, the Roadmaster and the Limited.

FOUR GROUPS

The Special (Series 40) is a 118-inch wheelbase car powered by a 93-horsepower engine. Somewhat heavier than last year's low-priced Buick, it exceeds the exceptional performance of that car. Top speed is 85 miles an hour.

The Century (Series 60) is a standard production car having all the characteristics of a specially-built racing automobile. It is powered by a 120-horsepower engine mounted on a 122-inch wheelbase chassis. Average top speed is 95 miles an hour.

The Roadmaster (Series 80) includes two six-passenger body types mounted on a 131-inch chassis. The Limited (Series 90) models are built on a 138-inch wheelbase chassis, and are designed to accommodate six and eight passengers.

The fourteen body types include two five-passenger, four-door sedans with built-in trunk; a two-passenger business coupe with deck; two four-passenger convertible coupes with rumble seat; two four-passenger sport coupes with rumble seat; two five-passenger, two-door Victoria coupes with built-in trunk; two six-passenger, four-door sedans with built-in trunk; a six-passenger convertible phaeton with built-in trunk; an eight-passenger, four-door sedan with built-in trunk, and a four-door sedan limousine with built-in trunk.

SPEED IS MOTIF

Speed is the motif followed throughout in the new Buick styling. The new Fisher bodies are streamlined from cowl to tail, featuring sharply slanted Vee-type windshields, high wedge-shaped radiators, speedlined fenders and long hoods.

STEEL BODIES

Among other features of the 1936 models are solid steel "Turret Top" bodies, hydraulic brakes, anodized alloy pistons of light weight and hardness of cast iron, knee-action wheels of improved design and no-draft ventilation. There is increase in head room, leg room and elbow room in all series. All sedans have a built-in trunk.

Big Verdict Returned In Damage Suit

Responsibility for the accident is charged to Reed, driver of the truck owned by the Segar company.

During testimony Dr. W. S. Edmeades of Martinez said that several years ago he was called to attend Miss Augustine and at the time observed the girl. He said she was quite normal then and that he instructed her in the care of her mother and she carried out the instructions intelligently.

He also testified that the second day after the accident, he treated Miss Augustine and she was not rational. The doctor told the jury that he called in a brain specialist and they concluded an operation upon her brain was necessary. The operation was performed and for several days afterward the girl showed improvement and then reverted to her original condition.

Mrs. Petty, attache of an Oakland sanatorium, testified that Miss Augustine has rubbed her head bald over a spot four inches in diameter and also testified as to other actions.

Judge Edward J. Butler of Marin county presided at the trial. Judges Thomas D. Johnston and A. F. Bray.

Attorneys in the case are George Carmody of Martinez, John Garaventa, Robt. Collins, T. M. Carlson of Richmond and Jesse Nichols of Oakland for the plaintiff, and L. Crowley of Cooley, Crowley and Supple of San Francisco, Kirk Lashelle, Jr., of San Francisco and James Hoey of Martinez for the defendants.

what has been done goes far beyond the exercise by individuals of the personal rights to accept or refuse jobs," Judge Sloss said in his ruling.

"Clearly the repeated and continued refusal by numbers of men constituting gangs to work 'hot cargo' and the cessation of work by gangs already on the job when the handling of 'hot cargo' becomes involved, constitutes collective or concerted action by the groups concerned."

"This phase of his ruling dealt with the employers' question 'Is there a right under the award to refuse to work solely because 'hot cargo' is to be handled?'"

Sloss declared outside his authority the question of whether a longshoreman who has violated the award has forfeited his right to be employed thereafter until he ceases his violation or makes restitution for such violations.

Registration of additional longshoremen, demanded by employers, hinged on settlement of the issue which Sloss referred back to the joint labor relations council, composed of three longshoremen representatives and three shipowner delegates. Sloss is the seventh member.

This problem became acute when the International Longshoremen's Association dispatching had reportedly informed employers tonight that only 54 men would be available to work ships in the harbor. Employers had ordered 140 gangs of 18 men each—2,520 men.

Rally Is Held By Members Of First Baptist Church

Members of the congregation of the First Baptist church last night attended a "pep rally" and dinner held at the church parlors under the direction of Rev. Kenneth B. Wallace.

The affair was opened with a 6:30 dinner served by Mrs. Dorothy Howden, assisted by a large committee of ladies from the church. Jerry Miner led in community singing and musical selections were furnished by the Congregation.

Rev. E. Temple Starkley, of Alameda, was the speaker of the evening, delivering an inspirational talk.

Brief talks were then heard from members of the congregation, who told of their ideas for a larger and better church during the fall and winter months.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Sept. 27.—UP —H. C. Church, optometrist, was so surprised when confronted by a large bear while deer hunting that his aim was bad. The wounded animal plunged toward him.

Church emptied his rifle at the charging, infuriated bear without apparent effect until the animal dropped dead five feet away.
